

About Us

Combining Software as a Service and Open Source with Boundless Creativity and Required Reliability.

Ignite Media focuses on developing and deploying on demand software as a service solutions based on the best LAMP components the open source community has to offer.

Our mission is to provide very focused solutions that are easy for customers to apply to their immediate needs without the usual hassles, costs, and time associated with traditional proprietary packaged software.

The on demand Software as a Service (SaaS) model has lowered the costs for customers of all sorts of software solutions from CRM, SCM, and even ERP systems. When this delivery model is combined with the best the open source community has to offer and provided with robust infrastructure, expert consulting, needed training, and 24x7 support, customers can experience dramatic reductions in costs while experiencing rapidly expanding capabilities.

Our focused solutions empower our customers to take full advantage of the unbounded creativity and unmatched breadth of solutions provided by the open source community with the peace of mind that comes from a secure commercial relationship with a company that will stand and deliver against the needed service level agreements and demanding systems availability requirements needed of enterprise class solutions.

Fundamentally we believe that the authors of the recent book Wikinomics (www.wikinomics.com) nailed the future of software when they wrote, "The Open Source world starts with the wonderful assumption that everybody is smarter than anybody"
